"The Spiritual Vitality of Memphis"

A sermon by William E. Clark at the Unitarian services in

THE MAJESTIC (Next to Hotel Gayoso) .

fr. Clark has spent his vacation in social service work in Memphis will discuss the spiritual vitality of Memphis as indicated by:

(a) Closing Red Cross Canteen when it was needed most,
(b) The imprisonment of Editor Leech.
(c) The Bray case and increase of juvenile criminals.
(d) The six hundred vacant seats at York meeting for educating the neglected children of our Tennessee mountains.
(e) The continued profiteering in human life.

SUNDAY MORNING AT 11 O'CLOCK

Thoughts For The Quiet Hour

REV. G. W. KEMPER, D.D. Sun of my soul, thou Savier dear, it is not night if Thou be near. Oh, may no earth-born cloud arise To hide Thee from Thy servant's eyes.

"Abide with me from morn till eve, For without Thee I cannot live; Abide with me when night is nigh, For without Thee I dare not die."

Some years ago a vessel laden with human freight was over-taken on the English coast by a violent storm and was in great peril. There was danger ahead. The life-saving crew had exhausted every means at their command, and still there were those whose escape seemed almost a matter of impossibility. They were about to give up their rescue work in utter despair, when the words of this sweet hymn were heard by them, coming from one of the women on board. Its effect was wonderful. A renewed effort was made by them, which resulted in the saving of the lives of nearly all on board the ill-fated vessel. The author of this hymn, who is per-baps better known by his book of devotional poems, "The Christian Year," was born in England in 1792 and died in 1866. He was a man of unusual talents, highly educated and greatly beloved by all who knew him. This favorite hymn grew out of an interasely de-

Another much-loved hymn is "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." This is our great fraternal hymn, and was written by modest John Fawcett. The author was born in 1740 and died in 1817, and was converted under the preaching of George Whitfield. While pastor of a small church at Waingate he was invited to London as successor to Dr. Gill at Carter's Lane. His congregation at Waingate was poor and able to pay him only 6 shillings a week for his services. He accepted the call to London and had preached his farewell sermon to his little congregation at Waingate. When the day of his departure for London came, and after all his belongings had been packed on wagons, his entire congregation came around to bid him and his family good-bye, All were in tears. Finally his good wife said:

"John, I cannot bear all this. I know not where to go "Nor I," replied her husband, "nor will we go, but will unload the wagons and remain here at Waingate with these dear, good peo-ple, who have shown so plainly their love for us."

While his heart was full, he wrote this inspiring hymn that commemorate the Christian love, which bound them "like to that above." Happy the minister today who has such a church; happy the church which has such a minister! John Fawcett was the author of 166 hymns, 20 of which are still in general use.

"An' so, I love the old hymns, and when my time shall come. Before the light has left me, and my singing lips are dumb. If I can only hear 'em then, I'll pass without a sigh To 'Canaan's fair and happy land, where my possessions lie!""
